Measuring Intellectual Capital in Corporations

D. Jaradaat, Nasser "M.S" – njaradat2006@yahoo.com
D. AL-Saleh, Asma R. - asma_abuwafa@yahoo.ca

- Abstract:
  A range of issues related to intellectual Capital has been discussed, which had been mentioned for historical interest, and defining the concept of intellectual capital as; includes all the knowledge owned by the organization and exploit them to serve the organization. It is a set of ideas and inventions and technologies, general knowledge and computer programs, designs, data skills, processes and innovations and applications in the company, and it is all knowledge as possible transferred to the profit. Its basic components have been identified as: structural capital, and human capital, and social capital, and psychological capital.

  As well as, addressing the most important metrics used to measure intellectual capital; these measures are based on calculating the turn on assets (ROA).