ABSTRACT

One of the important elements in GDP for developing countries is a transferred income to overseas worker. In Jordan, this transferred income tend towards an increase year after year were increasing number of workers abroad, and began to be an important position in Jordanian balance of payments.

The question in this matter, what the importance of these Transferred incomes for Jordanian's economy and where it is Expenditure.