

Description of Courses for the 2019/2020 Master in Business Law Program

Scientific research methods and techniques

(3 credit hours)

This course focuses on the study of the scientific methodology for the preparation of legal research, especially research connecting law and business. It also aims at training students on the proper scientific methodology in conducting research starting from the selection of the subject of research and developing a prior plan, searching for the necessary information, the method of specialized legal writing, and methods of proper documentation. Another focus on the course is on familiarizing students with thinking skills and proper analysis in order to be able to apply them to examine the legal phenomena associated with business legislation of all kinds and analyze the Legal and judicial opinions that have dimensions related to business and investments and to show how to identify the problem of research and its objectives and questions and the mechanism of collecting its data and extracting and presenting legal results and linking them to the objectives of the research and its questions and knowledge of the legal databases and the mechanism of extracting legal rules and relevant judicial rulings.

The legislative environment of the business sector in Jordan

(3 credit hours)

This course presents a comprehensive description of the business sectors in Jordan and the characteristics of these sectors and their organization and problems in general. It also focuses on the important business sectors that occupy a large part of the Jordanian market such as the agricultural sector, the industrial sector, the service sector, the banking sector, insurance, companies and investment. Through the course, students will be exposed to all legislation and laws regulating these sectors and will be shown their provisions and details and basic principles and legislative policy related to them. The course deals in depth with some of these sectors in terms of Regulatory legislation and practical procedures for its actions and disputes directly and indirectly.

Investment, corporate and securities legislation

(3 credit hours)

This course deals with the study of investment laws and their impact in creating an attractive environment for investment and the advantages enjoyed by the local and foreign investor and the role of official bodies in supporting and stimulating the investment process and ways to resolve disputes related to investment contracts, as well as the introduction of investment projects and investment incentives regulated in investment laws and Development and promotion of the investment environment. The course also deals with a general study of the law of companies by explaining the provisions related to private and public joint stock companies. It also deals with the course Statement of the concept of securities and their types and importance and the Securities And Exchange Commission and its work and how to issue securities and the conditions of issuance and deposit of securities and information and tasks of the filing center and the stock trading market and its provisions related to trading, deposit, disclosure and transfer and rules of listing and trading of shares and bonds in accordance with local legislation and international standards and brokerage companies and their work and control.

Banking and insurance legislation

(3 credit hours)

This course presents the laws of banks and insurance in terms of local rules and standards and the comparison regulating the licensing and work of banks and banking institutions in the Kingdom and their business and the laws governing them, in addition to studying insurance laws of all kinds and provisions and showing the most important legal rules to be known and dealt with.

An In-depth study of civil law (3 credit hours)

This course aims to shed in depth on a number of topics of civil law, the most important of which is the general theory of the right, the sources of commitment, the rules of commitment and some of the so-called contracts with a great impact on the various business sectors, in addition to some topics of rights in rem,. These topics will be studied in detail and in particular because of their impact on business and their relevant judicial applications.

AN In-depth study of Jordanian arbitration law

(3

credit hours)
This course deals with the most important alternative ways in resolving disputes between individuals, namely arbitration, by studying the origin and development of arbitration and the local and international legal rules governing the arbitration of disputes. This course also deals with the arbitration agreement, the rules governing it, the mechanism for selecting, dismissing and dismissing arbitrators, arbitration proceedings, procedural matters related to the arbitration process and the mechanism for the implementation of the arbitrators' decision.

An In-depth study of Jordanian labor law

(3 credit hours)

This course deals with the legislation governing the workforce in Jordan and all matters related to the labor market, wages and legal relations governed by the labor law of individual and collective employment contracts. It also focuses on the provisions governing trade union work, collective negotiations, labor strikes, government controls governing the labor market, capital and labor migration, in addition to government efforts to reduce unemployment and labor disputes and the most important legal provisions in it.

Customs and tax laws

(3 credit hours)

This course deals with customs regulations and policies within the framework of the philosophy of the national economy and its relationship with the economies of the foreign world. It specifically studies the elements of the application of customs duties in import and export, entry and exit of goods, customs clearance stages, customs duties, exemptions and customs savors, as well as direct and indirect taxes through the study of income tax law, sales tax, approval, tax refund and related disputes.

Industrial and commercial property

(3 credit hours)

This course aims to study the most important vocabulary of commercial and industrial property and the laws governing it in depth, notably trademark laws, patents, trade names, illegal competition, trade secrets, geographical indicators, industrial designs, designs of integrated departments and all the general and special provisions attached to these laws, in addition to modern and comparative judicial applications of these vocabularies in Jordanian legislation.

International commercial contracts (3 credit hours)

This course deals with the study of a range of international commercial contracts of legal interest to the business sector and trade, distinguishing them from traditional contracts, indicating the legal provisions governing them and defining their concept and scope, while addressing concession contracts, commercial licenses and commercial credits in terms of explaining their concept, pillars, conditions, obligations of their parties, implementation, legal problem and understanding and knowledge of the legal organization of these contracts and their judicial applications.

Selected topics in law and business (3 credit hours)

This course deals with an advanced study of selected topics of the business sector as well as the study of selected and specific cases of facts and disputes that have had an impact on the addition, change or deletion of legal rules of regulation and legislation. The course also focuses in particular on the booming and promising business sectors in the Jordanian market.

Economic crimes legislation (3 credit hours)

This course aims to study the legislation of economic crimes and its significance, its pillars, its types, its sanctions and the laws governing it and it highlights a selection of economic crimes, the most important of which are what is contained in the Law of the State Security Court, money laundering, tax evasion, customs smuggling, financial corruption, crimes related to trade and misleading acts, and all crimes related to consumer protection and the laws governing specifications, standards, models, intellectual property laws and the Jordanian Penal Code and the study of some application of these laws and regulations.

Illegal Competition Act and Confidentiality: (3 credit hours)

This course deals with the statement of the legal provisions on illegal competition, the statement of the images and forms of such competition, ways of avoiding them, disputes related to them and practical examples. In addition, it presents all provisions related to the subject of commercial secrets in terms of their definition, characteristics, cases, legal exceptions and how to file lawsuits about them.

English for business law (3 credit hours)

This course aims at developing the English language skills in legal affairs and discussions related to them in general. For this purpose, it focuses on legal terms in English and those related to the business sectors and the legislation governing them.